INTRODUCTION

The issue of business ethics is a very important and relevant topic in the context of the modern business world (Arif, 2020). This is because business has great potential to affect society and the surrounding environment. Poor business ethics can contribute to labor oppression, exploitation of natural resources, environmental pollution, and human rights violations (Weruin, 2019). Therefore, paying attention to business ethics is crucial in achieving sustainable development and maintaining social balance.

Good business ethics can build consumer trust in a brand or company (Arif, 2020). Consumers tend to choose to transact with companies that are considered to have integrity and adhere to ethical principles. Conversely, violations of business ethics can damage a company's reputation and negatively impact relationships with consumers.

Today, companies are not only expected to seek profit, but also have social responsibility towards the community and the surrounding environment (Rahmat, 2017). Business ethics is the foundation in carrying out corporate social responsibility, such as carrying out charitable activities, maintaining environmental sustainability, or contributing to community development.

The objectives of this community service activity include:

1. Spreading Awareness about Business Ethics: One of the main objectives of this community service activity is to foster public awareness of the importance of business ethics. In this context, opinion writing in online media, such as Kompasiana, becomes an effective tool to convey information and build understanding of ethical business practices to the public.

2. Encouraging Attitude and Behavior Change: This community service activity aims to stimulate changes in people's attitudes and behaviors related to business ethics. By providing appropriate and heartfelt information through opinion writing, it is hoped that people can reconsider their actions and decisions in doing business, making business ethics an inseparable principle.

3. Inspire Discussion and Reflection: Another purpose of this activity is to generate discussion and reflection on business ethics among the public. By publishing opinion pieces online, it is hoped that there will be interactions between writers and readers that can trigger dialogue, critical thinking, and a deeper understanding of relevant business ethics issues.

4. Building a Collaboration Network: This community service activity also aims to build a network of collaboration between writers, readers, and related stakeholders in supporting the spread of business ethics awareness. By presenting opinion writing in online media, space can be created for the exchange of ideas, experiences, and cooperation that can strengthen efforts to make business ethics a culture adopted by many parties.

With these goals, it is hoped that this community service activity can have a positive impact and encourage the adoption of better business ethics among the community.

1. Target Group Identification: This method starts by identifying the target group, i.e. the entrepreneurs. This group was chosen because they have an important role in the business world and can influence business decisions and practices in their environment. Entrepreneurs are the main audience intended to raise awareness about the importance of business ethics.

2. Study and Research: This stage involves the study and research on business ethics related issues relevant to this context of community service. Through literature analysis, research, and other sources of information, the community service team can gather the data and information needed to build strong arguments in opinion pieces that will be published online.

3. Opinion Writing: After understanding issues related to business ethics, the next step is to write opinion writing to be published in online media, especially in Kompasiana. This opinion piece must be well designed, contain strong arguments, and be delivered with good writing in order to attract the attention of entrepreneurs and other readers. In the paper, it is important to present examples of ethical business practices and illustrate the benefits that entrepreneurs can get when they adopt business ethics.

4. Publication in Online Media: This stage involves the publication of opinion writings in online media, especially on the Kompasiana platform. Kompasiana is a popular online media platform in Indonesia and can reach a wide audience. Through publication in online media, opinion writing can be easily accessed by entrepreneurs and other readers, so that messages about the importance of business ethics can be spread more effectively.

By using this method, it is hoped that community service activities can successfully foster entrepreneurial awareness of the importance of business ethics through opinion writings published in online media, especially in Kompasiana.
